THE TREE GROWS TALL whether in forest or in city;
It stands firm in the ground, never to be moved.
The tree watches the time which it towers over and sees all that passes, both the good and the bad;
It becomes old, but it has weathered the rest.

Men come and go;
 They rise and they fall,
 But the tree at its worst has outlasted all.
 The tree is cut down and molested in death,
 Its life from the ground severed at stump.
 The death is not, but that the tree be rekindled
 In the making of the paper, to mention just one.

And the paper can tell of that which it has seen,
 Of the times and the deaths,
 Of the rise and the fall,
 Of the cutting and rekindling,
 Of the times of the men,
 While it stood as a tree,
 as a quiet sentry of our time.

Academics

Going For Accreditation

Fort Wayne Bible College was notified in mid-January by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools that it was authorizing FWBC to begin the process leading to regional accreditation. If successful, accreditation would occur in March 1983. An Accreditation Task Force was appointed to initiate and coordinate the many procedures necessary to complete the accreditation process.

Dick Baxter is Coordinator of the Self-Study. On the committee are Dr. Ted Nickel, Dr. Robert Hughes, and Miss Eunice Conrad.

Basically, accreditation denotes that there has been an examination and evaluation, usually by peers, and a determination made as to the quality of educational programs at the institution being examined especially with regard to their contributing to the achievement of the college's objectives.

The faculty of the Bible Department fields questions asked by students interested in letting Biblical truths shape their life style and world view.

Biblical Studies

"To be, to know, to do." Encapsulized in these words is the philosophy of the Pastoral Ministries Department. The potential pastor is TO BE a man of God sensitive to God; a man of compassion, sensitive to man. He is TO KNOW the scriptures and the environment of his world. He is TO DO, that is, to develop skills and techniques, enabling him to discharge his responsibilities effectively and efficiently.

Dr. Robert Strubhar, Chairman of the Department of Pastoral Ministries, retires this year after sixteen years as professor here. He is respected as a man of sterling character with a tender pastor's heart. He will be missed.

Christian Education

Majoring in Christian Education means there will be notebooks and files chock full of useable information to turn in. And there may be hectic times before the due dates. But these requirements are all a part of the process of learning not only to teach but to do so in an organized manner. Students learn not only the why's but as many how's as there is time for so that when they work in the local church or related organizations they have the materials and skills.

People involvement is important too while they are learning to communicate God's Word to all age groups. Thus there are opportunities for this. For example, leadership training is offered in wilderness camping in "an outdoor lab" in Wisconsin. And then, of course, there is that big senior project—the Mini-convention presented in the churches to help in the promotion of good teaching.

Common to God's people throughout all ages has been musical expression and appreciation. Having the ability to lead a congregation in simultaneous worship, music also can provide appropriate transitions of mood in a service. The musical coordinator and anyone leading or performing a selection need to be aware of this great tool at their disposal that they might use it wisely and effectively, respecting the power that it affords. Furnishing both theory and practice, Fort Wayne Bible College extends this type of training to its music students.

With the explosive expansion of technology in the world today, opportunities for communicating Christ have also burgeoned. One such example is the field of Christian broadcasting. Not limited by national borders, the radio waves permeate many countries whose governments are excluding missionary workers. Fort Wayne Bible College views this method of mass media with expectation in the broadcasting minor.

Any place where people are employed has a need for trained business professionals. The Business Administration major at Fort Wayne Bible College recognizes this fact and prepares students to apply Christian principles, not only in the business world, but also in Christian organizations where they serve. Students in this program study the methods involved in finance, marketing, and personnel management. They learn simple computer programming and gain a grasp of the fundamentals of business law. Some of the students elect to take secretarial courses. This program has been evolving this past year with anticipation of a strong, growing major.

Not Just Kids' Stuff

In the Elementary Education major, students are prepared for teaching in Christian, public, and parochial elementary schools. Courses cover everything from the application of Piaget's theory in mathematics instruction to the creation of stuffed owls from old grocery bags. El. Ed. majors write dozens of lesson plans, collect ideas for enjoyable learning experiences, and observe and teach children in the real classroom. Students in the two-year Early Childhood Education program do similar activities in preparation for teaching and supervising nursery schools. In addition, some Elementary Education majors elect a minor in Missions to qualify for missionary service.

ABOVE: Even though the Elementary Education major is known to be difficult, apparently there is still time for relaxation. Missions

As fundamental as the training of pastors is to the existence of the church, so also is the informing and equipping of those who will cross cultural barriers with the gospel message. Committing themselves to an accurate representation of the claims of Christ, students in the missions major reflect this concern.

Seldom seen but never to be forgotten are the Missionary Nursing Students. One might say that their college experience is a dual personality; that is, they must take a major in Bible, a minor in missions and also fulfill a diploma program in nurses' training. This requires the student to take his or her freshman year at B.C. in general studies and Bible, the next three years at Lutheran Hospital School of Nursing, and then a final year in advanced studies in Bible and Missions.

Correspondence Department

The Correspondence Department meets a variety of people's needs. Not only students, teachers, and ministers make use of this service but also anyone in the general public who has a desire to take college credit courses by mail without a classroom schedule. It also helps students to attain hours that they are unable to accomplish during the school year.

TOP RIGHT: Correspondence staff; Bill Gerig the new director, Donna Lutton retiring director, Barb Artherhults, Sharon Hull, and Nancy Huffman.

Donna Lutton joined the FWBC staff in 1957 as secretary to the Dean of Students. Since that time she has served as Dean of Women, Assistant Director, and Director of the Correspondence Department. In July Donna retires to a new, exciting phase of life. Students and co-workers speak of her caring sensitivity and enjoyable sense of humor, and expressed gratitude for her faithful commitment to the college.

Career Day

Choosing a career is one of the most important decisions a college student makes. Career Day is scheduled by the college to aid students by providing them with an opportunity to discuss openings with representatives of various Christian organizations.

Sports

Falcon Soccer

The 1981 Soccer season ended with a 5-7-1 record. Much of our strength came from Freshman players such as halfback Jim Hughes, who led the team in assists; and center forward Ray Hylton, who led the team in scoring.

Our defense improved with each game. Senior fullback Steve Schlatter was voted MVP by his teammates. Junior fullback Hal Lehman was named Defensive Player of the year.

While we did not win as often as we had expected, or should have, the team discovered that there is much to be learned in losing. Our number one objective as a team was to represent Christ out on the field whether in victory or defeat. That objective was often put to the test this year, but as Coach, I am proud of all these men—they passed the test.

To be able to play any sport in college was one of my hidden dreams. In fact it was so hidden that when the chance came to play, I almost had to be dragged out onto the field. Thanks to Coach Williams and a great bunch of guys, I was able to fulfill that dream and grow as a Christian. Athletics in high school were fun but not fulfilling. On the Bible College Soccer Team, I was able to balance competition and God's place in athletics. I'm sure many others can also praise the Lord for the great growth and fellowship they found while enjoying sports at B.C. I'll never forget it.

As I look back on the season, I feel many emotions. I felt we had a really good year coming in third in our conference.

I feel we were all learning to understand what it means to play TOTALLY for the Lord regardless of the outcome of the score.

Our goal was to play volleyball drawing on our inner strength of Jesus Christ with our attention on Him, bringing unity amongst us.

The total essence of our season has only one purpose—Glorifying God.

The Falcons endured a somewhat disappointing year in 1981-82. The team was blessed with an abundance of talent but, according to Coach Morley, lacked the "mental toughness" to really be a winner. The season was not a total loss however. In a two-team tourney in Cincinnati, Ohio, the Falcons came away with two wins against two of the perennially winning teams in the Division, Cincinnati Bible and Kentucky Christian. The season was also marked by fine individual performances, led by MVP Joe Doty and Honorary Captain Marcus Warner. The team is to be commended for their hard work, perserverence and fine attitudes displayed throughout the season. Congratulations Falcons.

"So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God." (I Cor. 10:31) I guess that can sum up our purpose for playing this year. There were times when we were hurting and exhausted, and wanting to quit, but we kept playing. Sure, we would have liked to win a few more games, but the Lord gave us other victories that will help us further down the road.

He also gave us a great coach who encouraged us and reminded us for whom and why we were playing. She taught us a lot and we are going to miss her. Thanks, Coach. We love you.

Christian Service

Christian Service . . .

Involves You and Me—

Committed to the task of learning about God's word and how it applies to our lives and the lives of others.

Students in Service

ABOVE: Monica Collins helps lead in an Awana Club in her church. LEFT: Bobby Vale spots for an acrobatic boy in Urban Youth Ventures.

Students serving others is what Christian service is all about at Fort Wayne Bible College. Opportunities in many organizations are available to all students. Child Evangelism Fellowship, Awana Clubs, Urban Youth Ventures, and Campus Life Clubs are just a few of the larger groups offering service experience for BCers. Christian Service Performing groups are another popular option.

Beside all of the time that must be spent in studies, students are youth pastors, music ministers, club leaders, teachers, tutors, and even full time pastors in some cases. The Christian Service department provides a necessary application of what is learned in the classroom.

Ministry by His Love

Below: Adam Newcomb, Mark Brinkman, Mark Vincent, Michele Stoddard, and Beth Lay try to help Diane Schlak, also a student, do a bench press at Blacklake Lodge, where they have a ministry.

The ministry to people of all walks of life is one of the many challenging aspects of Christian Service at Fort Wayne Bible College. Through the love of Christ, Christians are able to love others, no matter what the problems or background of the person. Loving junior and senior high school young people who are facing peer pressures and family problems is the ministry of Campus Life and Blacklake Lodge. Meeting the needs of these teens requires a unique atmosphere and unselfish service.

A small group of Pastoral Ministries majors serve in the capacity of full time or part time pastorates, leading congregations, youth activities and evening Bible studies during the week. Each student pastor has to be dedicated to serving Christ because of the heavy responsibilities of pastoring a church and attending college at the same time. By giving time, energy, and love to young people and adults in congregations, student pastors have been able to lead many to a personal and meaningful relationship with the Lord.

Freedom Song: A Talent Returned

Freedom Song is a five-member performing group which combines the vocal and instrumental talents of its members to honor and glorify God. The group consists of Steve Burkey, Cathy Smidtz, Doug Hayes, Chris Fox, and Dan Cairl. A spokesman from the group commented on the choice of the group's name: "the reason we chose the name "Freedom Song" was that we believe there are two kinds of freedom which people need to experience: a freedom from death and hell which all who ask Christ into their lives have, and a freedom in living which comes from following Christ's commands and will." The group's members have seen individuals commit their lives to Christ and have learned to regard the concerns of others as more important than their own.

HIS Company

To be a member of a Christian Service performing group is an exciting and strenuous adventure. HIS Company is a seven-member traveling Christian drama troupe under the direction of Sonja Strahm. In its weekend ministry to people of many denominations in the Tri-State area, Biblical principles come alive on stage in vivid portrayals. The repertoire this season consists of two full-length dramas, dramalogues, and puppet presentations.

The name HIS Company is derived from the first letters of Honoring In Service and, of course, also refers to the fact that the members belong to Jesus Christ and therefore are His Company. The year verse is II Cor. 4:1. "Therefore seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not."

One of the most unusual Sundays was the one in which they presented five full-length dramas in three churches in 25 hours: "What Must I Do" three times and "Why me, Lord?" two times. The Drama troupe will present "The Rich Young Ruler" at Youth Conference.

Jubilaté has traveled many miles this year singing in youth rallies, church services, fellowships, and banquets throughout Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, and Kentucky. "Our goal is to bring people to know Christ through the help of the Holy Spirit, and to challenge those who have already committed their lives to Jesus Christ to a deeper commitment in serving Him," said one member of the group.

Creative interpretation, blending song and some drama, enhanced the appeal of this group in fresh communication with the audience. Rejoicing in song, Jubilaté led in worship.

A Time To Learn, A Time To Praise . . .

ABOVE: Julie Springer sings during a chapel service. RIGHT: Twice a year the FWBC family is given the opportunity to partake of the Lord's Supper.

Chapel time at Fort Wayne Bible College is an opportunity for the students and faculty to take a break from their classes and study time to assemble as a family for the purpose of learning how to live a life pleasing to God, as well as learning about the present conditions of our world and how we as Christians can, with God's help, have a positive effect upon the world. Chapel time also affords our college family with the opportunity to give praise and glory to God the Father.

Missions Greenhouse

Continually striving for contemporary missions-awareness, Fort Wayne Bible College provides ample opportunities for students, faculty, and staff to get involved in many facets of missions. Special speakers, mission board chairman, missionaries from every corner of the world and from all walks of life visit the campus to lecture or just chat with interested students. Trips to mission conventions like Urbana are sponsored by the Student Missionary Fellowship with efforts to help students find God's direction in their lives. Founder's Auditorium has been a spot for many famous missionaries as well as many fervent mission-minded people, challenging students to consider the wide fields of evangelism and Christian outreach for careers or for short term missions. Foreign exchange students from Haiti, Jamaica, Bermuda, South Africa, Bahamas, England, and India enrich the lives of many on campus as they share their vision of helping to spread the Gospel in their own country with students. Truly Fort Wayne Bible College is a greenhouse for those who wish to be exposed and grow in their vision for world evangelism.

Student Association

Student Association had a memorable and exciting year, as they were able to see firsthand how the Lord provides. When the year began, the committee didn't have the funds needed to sponsor the events which they had planned. But, through careful planning and strategy they held seventy events for the student body. With the money they raised, they bought practical items, such as the platforms used for special concerts, a mixer for the snack shop, and the carpeting for the second floor of Leightner.

RIGHT: Coordination, the key to a good marriage. Karol and Dave Hughes participate in the egg race.

The Married Student Fellowship is a developing organization made up of married students and their families. Believing in the growth of the total person, MSF has tried to focus on meeting the social, physical, and spiritual needs of its members. Two weekly Bible study/support groups have met these past two semesters for the wives led by Mrs. Naomi Bostrom and Mrs. Char Vincent. Periodic social events like the fantastic Christmas party at the home of Dean Denny and Marian Williams and the relaxing evening at the Holidome really spiced up an otherwise tough winter. And let's not forget to mention our intramural championship flag football team. We have to hand it to you guys; you're not getting older, you're getting bigger!

In the coming year, MSF is looking forward to more personal involvement with its members with more support groups, and a greater emphasis on meeting the uniquely special needs of individual married couples. Whether a couple is newly married or very well established, MSF has something to offer.

The cafeteria is an important part of the college student's life, not only for the obvious reason of eating but also for the fellowship that each is a part of while eating. The cafeteria also provides opportunities to meet and make new friends and enjoy the company of old friends.

Topics of conversations range from the doctrines of Calvin and Arminius to the latest social events. Just being able to express your feelings and to relieve the tensions of the day makes the cafeteria seem like the dining room at home.

TOP: The great kitchen crew of S. Rhone-mus served up the food and also some great entertainment the Saturday noon of Youth Conference.

LEFT: Sam, Irene, and Jane are an important contribution to the food service staff.

Let Every Tongue Confess . . .

RIGHT: Reverend Seldon shares a new perspective on willingness to serve Christ during the SMF Spiritual Emphasis Chapel.

The Student Missionary Fellowship includes all students of the college in a program to motivate, inform, and enlist their participation in the mission of the Christian Church.

Finance is donated by the students to such projects as assisting an exchange student from Jamaica to be at Fort Wayne Bible College for a year. They also assist some of their fellow students to have mission experience in many parts of the world during summers. Various projects have been initiated that have resulted in funds being supplied to relief and development programs in the Third World. There has also been an outreach to international students in our city.

SMF has been a channel for student initiatives in world mission and a medium for international education. The Missions Department commends the students for what has been accomplished. The SMF Executive Committee has operated effectively and has learned much in administration.

Youth Conference proved to be a valuable weekend for visiting high school students as well as the Bible College family. "Staking Your Claim," the theme, urged students to make their commitment solely for the Lord. Jim Mathis, a pastor from Upland, Indiana, joined us for the weekend and deeply challenged the young people to stake every claim of their lives for the Lord. Many decisions were made and the results were well worth all the hard work and long hours which made Youth Conference a success. Many thanks go out to all the students of FWBC who put in extra time and effort to make it a memorable and a spiritually enlightening weekend for many.

Sincerely,
The Steering Committee of Youth Conference '81-'82

Anticipation, Reflection, Farewell

Baccalaureate offered the Bible College family an opportunity to join with the graduates in a special worship service of thanksgiving and challenge. Coach Steve Morley encouraged the seniors to become servants to those they are ministering to and to allow suffering to bring about a fuller commitment of their lives to God. In the spirit of the Apostle Paul, he closed with an exhortation and loving farewell.

For graduating seniors, commencement brought reflection on God's faithfulness in the accomplishment of a sought-after goal and anticipation of exciting experiences yet to come. Dr. Abe Van Der Puy, chairman of the board of World Radio Missionary Fellowship, spoke of the abilities God has given us to do His work and asked, "Will you do it?" After receiving their degrees, the graduates greeted friends and relatives on Founder's lawn in the glorious sunshine of a perfect day.

The winter of 1944-45 was the worst in the history of the Midwest. It was a winter of record-breaking cold, with temperatures dropping to below zero for weeks. The snow was deep and heavy, and the wind was howling. The people of the Midwest were suffering from the cold, and the government was struggling to keep the roads open.

More sandbaggers sought at Coliseum

Fort Wayne, Ind., city officials today sought more sandbaggers to help guard against flooding of the city by the St. Joseph River. The city is now in a critical situation, with water rising rapidly and threatening the city center. Officials are appealing to the public for more volunteers to help with the sandbagging efforts. The city is currently using sandbags to reinforce the dikes along the river. The situation is becoming more dire as the water continues to rise. Officials are urging the public to act quickly to help prevent a major disaster.

Residents keeping constant watch as flood converts Lake Avenue into real-life lake

By HILL ZLATOS

Frank Yeranko arose at 5 this morning to find his neighborhood living up to its name. Yeranko, his wife Kendyle and their children, Jason, 9, and Erin, 5, in a stone and white-wood house trimmed in red on 1501 Randallia. The 40-year-old home is in the Lakeside neighborhood. Alarmed by a half-inch rainfall, Yeranko was up every two or three hours during the night to check on his basement. By 5 a.m., his basement started to flood and a "lake" began forming at the intersection of Lake and Randallia in front of his house.

About four hours later, the lake stretched 325 feet in front of Lakeside Middle School — closed for the second straight day — and was nearly 3 feet deep. The Yerankos have lived in the house five years and survived the flood of 1978. Then they had two or three inches of water in their basement compared to the four or five inches they pumped out this morning. During both floods, the overflow of the Maumee River spilled behind Lakeside Middle School. But, said Yeranko, pointing out his front door, "we didn't have all this water out here."

An assistant principal at Lakeside Middle School, Yeranko took a day off in the event he had to evacuate his family. Having seen pictures of flooded cars in the newspaper, he already has moved his 1982 Mustang three blocks. But as his children gaze through an eight-foot wide picture window to observe the sandbagging operation, he feels from their house. Yeranko estimated, "It doesn't look too good right now."

Directing the operation to save the homes of the Yerankos and their neighbors is District 4 Fire Chief Ronald Brown. About 4:15 a.m., he shifted volunteers sandbagging in front of the school to the 10th Street levee. Brown said the 10th Street levee is the most critical. When a pump with a capacity of 100 gallons a minute arrived from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, he predicted the city would have

A Dream Come True

On May 7, 1982 a dream came true. The new Reynolds Building, housing campus maintenance, was dedicated in honor of Edison Reynolds, the physical plant director who had the dream. This facility, which was funded and equipped by community contributions, expanded the work area and enhanced the efficiency and safety of the maintenance operation. At the dedication Eddie stated, "There isn't a day that goes by that I don't praise the Lord for this new building."

Staff-Fac Index

Time, effort, concern, sacrifice, years of total involvement
You have given freely to this publication
You have demonstrated the true meaning of the word dedication
We applaud you, Miss Conrad
